

ELISABETH BELLING

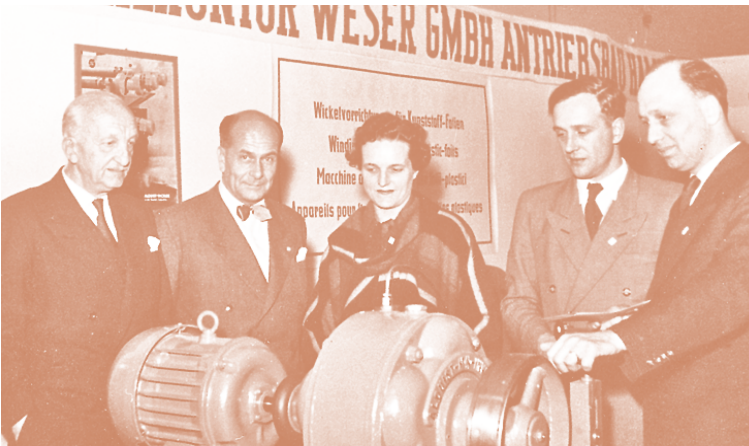

100 Years

Lenze

The future is made today

Keeping everything in motion, developing further, courage to change – that has always been the personal drive of Elisabeth Belling.

Babette Herbert
Lenze Shareholder

Premiere in 1952: Lenze presents the Simplabelt gearbox at the German Industrial Fair in Hanover.

Where there is Lenze, there is growth. The globally active company has continuously developed since its foundation in 1947 and is one of the leading automation companies for mechanical engineering today.

Our internationally networked industry experts know what customers and machine operators need. After all, more than 70 years of experience and a consistently future-oriented mindset flow into our individual and innovative automation concepts.

Lenze is a family business through and through. Our dedicated employees are the companies' heart and soul, while the shareholder family sets the course. Elisabeth Belling is an influential figure who was ahead of her time. She would have turned 100 in October 2021. A very appropriate time for a special appreciation.

The best machines and production facilities around the world use Lenze. We are pace setters in automation and measure ourselves by the success of our customers.

Christian Wendler
CEO Lenze

Sustainability is an essential part of our actions. With our performance, we solve complex challenges of tomorrow – sustainably and individually.

Daniel Lindemann
Automation Systems Lenze

Internationality and diversity characterize our project teams. This allows us to think in new ways and to find diverse solutions for our customers.

A STRONG WOMAN

Founder's daughter, and a family woman

Elisabeth Belling and Lenze – they belong together. Born on October 24th, 1921, the daughter of company founder Hans Lenze and his wife Clara, she married Alfred in 1944. Together, the couple had three children: Babette, Hans and Nikolaus.

Contributor and driving force

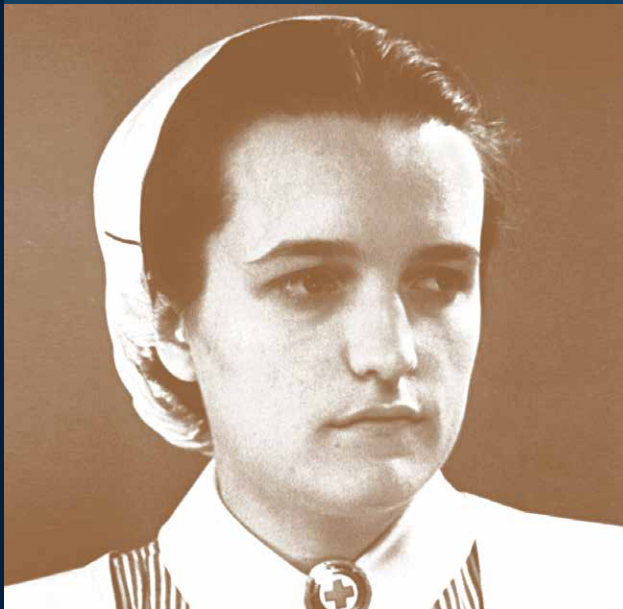

She continuously guided the company on its path to the future and provided significant input. After the death of her husband in 1981, she decided to assume operational responsibility in the management. By doing so, she sent out a clear signal: Lenze is and will remain a family business.

Pioneer and role model

She trained as a nurse in 1938, and this experience sharpened her eye for the concerns and needs of others. Her guiding principle was: "It's all about the people." In addition to her social commitment in the company and the region, she founded the Hans and Clara Lenze Stiftung. Still a role model to many today, she died on October 17th, 2013, shortly before her 92nd birthday.

HANS AND CLARA LENZE STIFTUNG

The charitable foundation of the Lenze shareholder family has been supporting talented young people for over 30 years. The foundation awards scholarships to students in the fields of science, research, education and training.
